Dear Friends of the Preborn,

Enclosed is our Christmas gift to you! No, it's not a candy cane or a card, but rather something more important, namely - a voice dissenting against tyranny. The sticker we're giving you speaks a simple message - Repeal Obamacare. This sticker will help keep this matter before the public eye and put pressure on politicians to do exactly what the sticker calls for - repeal the government health care legislation that the Democrats have shoved down America's throat.

There is a tendency for people to go back to sleep after an election. But truly, it is only after the election that the hard work begins. It is important to hold the feet of those elected to the fire. History has shown us that everytime the Democrats pass sweeping socialist reforms, the Republicans decry it, regain power, but then never undo what the Democrats did. Rather we see from history that the Republicans further fund the new socialist programs!

Historically, after President Woodrow Wilson created the income tax and federal reserve, the Republicans decried it, but after coming to power via Calvin Coolidge did nothing to repeal those evil and freedom-robbing acts. After, Franklin Roosevelt brought in his 'New Deal,' the Republicans decried it, but never repealed any of it. After Lyndon Johnson brought in his 'Great Society,' the Republicans decried much of it, but never repealed any of it.

History has taught us that politicians need to feel fire under their feet from the people. This sticker does that in a small way. The sticker keeps this matter before the public eye and the politicians. You can put this sticker on your car window or bumper, on your file cabinet at work or any great place you can think of!

If you would like to obtain more of these stickers to give to friends or family, you can get them from us for only twenty-five cents ($0.25) a piece!

Most people have no idea how bad this legislation will be. This gives the State ownership over our very bodies. A bureaucrat from Washington, D.C. will be making your health care decisions. You will stand in line for your medical needs. You will be required by law to be a part of this system (though none of the politicians will be) or be punished. Parents will be arrested for child neglect if they do not follow the State's health care requirements. Over 46% of primary care physicians have already said they will quit January 1, 2013, rather than be a part of this system and be told by Washington what to do for their patients, or be fined.

May the Lamb that was slain receive the reward of His suffering!

MISSISSIPPI

Personhood Tour

March 18th - April 1st, 2011

The State of Mississippi represents the best chance in America of seeing the personhood of the preborn child recognized by a state in opposition to the Roe. v. Wade ruling. Next fall, the people of Mississippi will have the opportunity to vote whether the preborn child is a person from the moment of fertilization, or not.

Personhood USA [PersonhoodUSA.com] has asked us to come to the state of Mississippi and conduct a Tour throughout the state of Mississippi, wherein we display our photographs and distribute literature. Our Tours produce two things on behalf of the personhood movement - networking and inspiration.

Networking is important to establish before the six months leading up to the election - our Tour will bring people together to see this accomplished. Secondly, our Tours inspire people that - now is the time to act!

If you would like to be a part of this effort, call our office at 414-462-3399 so we can share the details with you. If you are unable to participate out on the streets, please consider supporting this effort financially by sending whatever you can to Missionaries to the Preborn.

STATISM DESTROYING FAMILY ONE MOVIE AT A TIME

by Pastor Matt Trehella

The other day one of my children came home with the film How to Train Your Dragon. Underneath the wonderful animated-imagery and action-filled storyline, were the usual pagan presuppositions. The egalitarian presupposition was there of course – always have to have a girl acting like one of the boys. But the main presupposition in the film is what I call the “undermine the family/hail the State” presupposition.

This presupposition teaches children to break with the family. It teaches them that adults are just a bunch of dolts hanging on to archaic ideas. That children are smarter than adults. They know better than them. Therefore they’re justified in making a break with the family because, well, they just understand things better than the adults.

This thinking makes the child a useful instrument for the State. Imbued with a sense of autonomy; the child places his allegiance with the State rather than the family. He pours his strength, creativity, and heart into the State – all under the mantra of “this is my life.” Family is left only playing the role of supplying sentimental traditions for the child – like Christmas and Easter.

Unfortunately, the foolish and self-centered way many of the adults in our society conduct their lives only provides opportunity for the statists and elitists to further exploit the deep divide they desire to create between the generations.

The arrogance of youth, coupled with their keen sense of smelling out all traces of hypocrisy at that age (except their own of course) results in such films having a huge impact upon their lives. Swelled with condescension, they readily embrace dishonor and even disgust for the older generation.

All this is meant to undermine the family, and hail the State.

The truly severe part of the problem is that we are about four generations deep into this thinking now. Rebellion is never a problem instigating. It’s always lying just below the surface. But the statists and elitists use it as form of social-conditioning and policy-making when it comes to driving a wedge between the generations.

Generational warfare is a familiar tool of the statists and elitists of our age. They understand the importance of making young people think ill of their parents, if one is going to build a statist society. They know for statism to thrive, the family must be weakened, redefined, and annihilated.

The way our society breaks people into age groups even lends itself to this generational warfare. Each age group isolates itself from the other. This age-apartheid is seen in America’s schools, and is practiced by most churches.

Family itself however stands as a bulwark against such encroachments – or at least it should. The family brings the various ages together, linked by biology, adoption or marriage, with one common goal – the existence and good of the family.

When families understand the importance of family, they pour their strength, creativity, and heart into family. The members no longer act autonomously, but see the need to retain relationships within the family structure, and strengthen the weaker members. They keep the locus of their economy within the family. In short, the family acts as a check to statism.

Family is at the hub of God's created order. Man exercises dominion in the earth through marrying and having children, and bringing every area of life into conformity to God's Law. Children are to honor their parents, and give ear to their wisdom.

Most movies root such thinking out of children starting at a young age. The child is systematically taught to throw off any allegiance to family and think only of themselves. The parents unwittingly foment the rebellion they observe in their home, and strengthen the State - and they do this one movie at a time.

Monthly Tour Stop
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

4th St. & Wisconsin Ave.

Saturday, December 18th, 2010

11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Last month, more than 50 people braved the cold air to speak up for their neighbor in Kenosha. We are hopeful that once again people will come out to speak up for their preborn neighbor in need. We are taking Planned Parenthood to task in our set-up, exposing the horror of the killing that they do.

Please come if at all possible.
Pray for this effort if you're unable to attend.
Signs and literature are provided.
MissionariesToThePreborn.com for more info.

Please remember the missionaries in your prayers as they continue to go out to the deathcamps here in Milwaukee. Pray that the Lord would strengthen them, guide them, and grant them favor with the parents and the authorities.
